National History Day - BBMS Representatives!

February 28, 2022

Dear BBMS Families,

Each year, students in 8th grade across the country compete at the school level for National History Day. Students can select to conduct research on a topic of their choice and then decide on what category to enter. Students can design exhibits, create documentaries, build a website, produce a performance, or write a paper. Students can enter their work individually or in groups.

Then, in January, students showcase their work in a school-wide exhibit that is judged by outside volunteers and staff from HCPSS. The "winners" at the school level are selected to then compete at county, state and national levels.

Bonnie Branch is excited to announce the selection of the following students who will showcase their work at this year's county level competition:

Category: Individual Exhibit - Sam Liebling

Group Exhibit: Raymah Quist-Therson and Andie Chung

Category: Individual Documentary - Tess Silverman

Group Documentary: Conor Gordon and jimmy Spitz

Category: Individual Website - Kennedy Smith

Group Website: Addison Greenwald and Mia Pinkham

Category: Individual Performance - Annette Horner

Group Performance: Jenn Tom and Riley Musselman

Category: Individual Paper - Matthew Rouch and Aila Claypool

We were impressed with the work of all of 8th grade students this year and know that those selected to represent BBMS will do a great job! Best of luck and we hope to hear some good news about moving on to the next level!!

Go Sharks!
